

FARMERS' ATTITUDE
ON WHEAT QUESTION
PREVENTS SHORTAGE

Refusal of Many Wheat Growers to Participate in Crop Control Means Much

IS HAMILTON'S BELIEF

Increased Planting by 8% Over That of Preceding Year

ST. PAUL, Aug. 4.—The refusal of many wheat farmers to participate in the Administration's crop control plan has saved the Nation from a threatening disastrous shortage of basic food.

This was the contention made by National Republican Chairman, John Hamilton, today in the first address of his campaign organization swing through 15 Western States, delivered before a luncheon of party workers.

Hamilton said "the facts are that in the face of over $100,000,000 paid the wheat farmers so far for reducing the acreage of the 1935-36 wheat crop, farmers nevertheless increased their wheat planting by 8 per cent over the plantings of the preceding year. The increase exceeds 5,000,000 acres over the plantings last year.

The Chairman also cited figures to show that wheat imports have increased from almost nothing last year to over 27,000,000 bushels. He also stated that there is an indicated wheat shortage this year. And he further stated that there are indications for the future much larger imports of wheat from foreign countries than even this alarming volume that has already developed under the farm policies of the present Administration.

"As far as Secretary Wallace is concerned the dairy farmer is a forgotten man," Hamilton declared. Here again Hamilton pointed with alarm to the great increase in cheese imports from Canada as well as the doubling of the influx of cattle.

Hamilton said "the destruction of 6,200,000 pigs, the slaughter of 200,000 prospective mother sows and the reduction of corn by 12,600,000 acres," had left farmers without reserve supplies to meet the drought shortage.

Edgely Scouts Spend Week
At Camp Buccou, Flemington

This past week was spent at Camp Buccou, Flemington, N. J., by the Boy Scouts of Edgely, troop one. In the athletic activities they made a fine showing by tying for first place in baseball and by winning first honors in horseshoes. In "touch football" they reached the finals, but failed to make a showing in the other event, volleyball.

The totals of the dress parades which were held Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, indicated that Edgely was the third best troop of the six troops at camp.

Individual honors were secured by Harold Bergman, who was admitted to the camp honorary lodge, Wiemactendiek. The two honor campers, who spoke Scout laws at the ceremonial campfire on Saturday night, were Elwyn Gould and Wayne Locke, Assistant Scoutmaster Gene Nichols, who was their leader for that week, was presented with a Buccou staff neckerchief.

ITALY'S NEW ENVOY
HAS FASCIST RECORD

Fulvio Suvich, New U. S. Representative, Considered Well-Trained Diplomat

FINANCE HIS SPECIALTY

By Lindsey Parrott
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Aug. 4.—(INS)—Meticulous diplomat but at the same time sportsman, musician and conversationalist is Fulvio Suvich, Mussolini's new ambassador to Washington.

He likes: riding fast in his own black-bodied automobile; swimming; skiing; and the symphonies of Wagner and Verdi.

He dislikes: cigarettes; heavy foods; the slightest untidiness in his immaculate office.

A piece of torn paper tossed carelessly on the floor offends Suvich. Quietly, he points to the scrap and to the waste-basket. Or he retrieves the remnant himself, deposits it where it belongs—and only then goes on with even his most important work.

Quiet, self-effacing, five feet seven inches and slim with light brown hair that will be quite thin at the temples by his fiftieth birthday next January 23, Suvich has been called the perfect foil for his chief, the Duce.

He argues little, carries out instructions to the letter, speaks slowly and unexcitedly in the manner of the Trieste Germanic stock from which he springs.

Finance is his specialty, after foreign affairs and he seldom, if ever, misquotes statistics, or deals in the indefinite "there or thereabouts" which Mussolini hates.

In spite of his official position Suvich never, so far as can be learned, has driven the automobile he pilots, through a red light. When he was tourist commissioner, with freedom of admission to every beach in Italy, he always, so it is reported, paid his own admission fees.

The new Ambassador to the United States is one of Italy's most soundly trained diplomats, and one of the earliest representatives of the post-war tendencies that crystallized into the Fascist regime.

Born when Trieste was Austrian, Suvich was trained as a lawyer in the university there. Believing firmly in the right of Italy to her lost Adriatic territory, he joined the Italian army when the war broke out and fought through the struggle with a lieutenant's commission.

Forming the Trieste Anti-bolshevik committee in 1919 and assuming its presidency, Suvich was a forerunner of the Fascist movement which he quickly joined. And when Mussolini marched on Rome, Suvich was rewarded with quantities of hard, laborious work, delicate negotiations and the difficult economic questions of the new regime suited to his clear and subtle mind. The list of his jobs is multifarious.

He was a Fascist deputy in 1921, occupied for the most part with

THE CONSTITUTION

By W. J. Cameron

A Talk Given On the Ford Sunday Evening Hour, February 2, 1936

When lately we beheld a people great and strong mingling their sorrow and their hope around a throne, some of us were asked, "Where is our center? What holds our state intact?" For we also have a center that stands unmoved while statesmen come and go, where is enthroned the majesty of our nation. That center is the Constitution.

The peculiar glory of the Constitution of the United States is that it is not a charter of rights granted by government to a people, but a limit of powers to which a vigilant people restricts its government. It is not a government edict which the people must obey, but a people's law which government must obey. "We the people of the United States,"—these seven potent words were and remain, all subsequent world upheavals notwithstanding, the most revolutionary words on record.

It is often asserted nowadays that this generation knows more than did the Constitution makers. So we do—but not about government. We could have known more, perhaps, had we been interested, but within this framework of freedom erected by the fathers, we have used our minds in other matters—we have been busy building the country. Their special wisdom in the field of government left us free to do that. They made the blue print, laid the foundations, reared the scaffolding and started the building; and we have by no means yet filled in that framework of destiny and freedom.

Our fathers knew better than we that the specific temptation of government in all times—any government—even an American government—is to seize more power than is allotted to it, or misuse the power it has. They foresaw the always possible rise of dazzling personal leadership; they foresaw the displacement of law by temporary emotion, the tendency to unwise action under stress; and to prevent these evils they erected certain barriers. The land was stripped of any power superior to the People who spoke through the Constitution. The Presidency was made subordinate to the Constitution. So was the Congress. So were the Courts. These three powers of government, with officers oath-bound to the Constitution, are established in complete independence one of another, on the supposition that never would all three of them combine against the people or the law that gave them being. Thus far that foresight has been justified. Every thrust made against the Constitution has been made to get more authority over the people and to leave the people with less authority over their own affairs; but, in every such attempt, one of these checks, and oftener two, have operated to prevent the seizure of power.

A recent criticism declares that the Constitution is static, that it leaves no room for natural development. On one side the Constitution is wide open toward the sky for all possible growth. Never once has it operated to hinder progress. Not one of the recent new experiments in this country was prevented by the Constitution. However fantastic they may have been, they were freely put in motion and tried. Months and years they had, with all the powers of the government behind them, with all the resources of the treasury at their disposal, to justify themselves, to root themselves in the service and confidence of the people. The Constitution did not put forth a hand against them; yet, unfit proposals one by one proved themselves incapable of seeding down in American soil. When

ARE $3,147.40 IN ARREARS

Increase of One Mill in Rate is Found Necessary; Funds Are Needed

$2,000 LOANED SCHOOLS

NEWTOWN, Aug. 4.—Because of the large amount of unpaid taxes shown by the recent auditing of the Newtown School Board, an increase in the rate of one mill has been found necessary, according to a report of the Newtown Borough auditors, George D. Hibbs, Warren T. Sutton, and B. T. Patterson. Delinquent taxpayers still owe $3,147.40, the report shows.

The bonded indebtedness of the school district is $39,000, and because of insufficient funds to close the past school year a sum of $2,000 was borrowed. Of the bonded indebtedness items, $18,000 dates from 1916 and the remainder, $21,000, was contracted when the addition was made to the school buildings.

The tax rate for 1936-37 has been set at 11 mills on real estate and a 3 mill per capita tax.

The tax rate of 10 mills on a valuation of $1,420,820 brought the property tax levied to $14,208.20 and the per capita tax of $3 on 1300 of voting age added $3900 to this amount. Other receipts were $565.44 in delinquent tax, $10,257.25 from the State appropriation, and $5929.90 from tuition of non-resident pupils.

Expenses included $2359.99 for supervisors and $18,416.51 for teachers' salaries. Textbooks, supplies, etc., brought the cost of instruction up to $22,170.61.

Reinforcements Swing Tide To Madrid Defenders

Madrid, Aug. 4.—Government reinforcements rushed up at the last minute and swung the tide of a 24-hour battle on the Somo-Sierra front in favor of Madrid defenders and forced withdrawal of the rightist rebels, it was officially asserted today.

Three hundred rebels were slain against 84 government soldiers killed, according to the sources. The battle began in the mountain pass at five o'clock, after a fierce battle throughout the day, until the weight of more troops brought victory to the reds this morning.

Rebel success, however, was claimed in Saragossa with the capture of Casce, 60 miles east of Saragossa. The Loyalists' attempt to capture Saragossa continued without success.

With the exception of the Somo-Sierra battle, said to have been one of the stiffest engagements of the Civil War, the government concentrated its attacks against rebel strongholds by the airplane and artillery route. Palma, capital of the island of Majorca and Huesca, were bombed again by airplanes, and loyal forces surrendered along the coast northeast of Gibraltar.

Balloonists Prepare For Trip West

Towanda, Aug. 4.—Safe and rested after their thrilling race from Cleveland had ended in adjoining counties of this northern tier mountain area, two teams of balloon pilots packed and prepared their bags for their trip westward today.

The apparent winners in the cross flight from the Cleveland Exposition grounds, Frank Trotter and John Kieker, were to bring their belongings into Towanda from nearby Leraysville today. They landed in a Bradford county meadow, 18 miles east of here, at 3.05, e. s. t., yesterday.

About 50 miles to the west, Milford Vanik and Anthony Fairbanks, pilot of the Great Lakes Exposition, prepared to pack their packet and return from Wellsboro, where they spent the night, to Buffalo.

Forced down when their ballast became exhausted, the balloon landed at about 1.20 p. m., at Niles Valley, Tioga county, ten miles north of Wellsboro.

The fire apparently started in an unused shed in the rear of the premises.

WATERS OF DELAWARE CLAIM ANDALUSIA GIRL

Marian Diamond Steps Into Hole While Wading; Work 3 Hours to Revive Her

WAS FOUR YEARS OLD

ANDALUSIA, Aug. 4.—A small girl, Marian Diamond, aged four, was drowned at Torresdale Manor, yesterday noon. Groups of rescue workers endeavored in vain to revive the child, working with inhalators, and artificial respiration methods for nearly three hours.

The child victim of the waters of the Delaware River was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Diamond, Philadelphia. The father is an employee of the Episcopal Academy, Philadelphia. The little girl had resided at the home of Mrs. Grace Long, 133 Walnut avenue, since infancy.

Marian, with four other small children from the Long boarding home, in care of an older girl, Margaret Sykes, of the same address, had gone to the water-front. The Diamond child was wading, according to her companions, who were playing on a raft. Suddenly the little girl disappeared. It is believed that she stepped into a hole. Being unable to swim, she went under immediately.

The Sykes girl made a vain attempt to locate the little girl, calling at the same time for help. Six employees of the United States Lighthouse Service, of which group G. Littleton is foreman, were engaged in erecting a light-house nearby. They dived into the water, and searched for a few minutes before finding the body. Artificial respiration was resorted to until inhalators arrived. Among the groups trying to restore life to the small body were: Bucks County Rescue Squad, Union Fire Company, Croydon Fire Company, employees of Bell Telephone Company, physicians from Frankford Hospital. Dr. John F. McFadden was also summoned and helped to direct the work. The volunteer workers state that the child, after a short time, commenced breathing, when the oxygen supply was exhausted. Additional supplies were rushed to the scene, but to no avail.

The tragedy occurred at 11.30, and efforts were not relinquished until 2.15. The body was then removed to the Long residence. Dr. James Lawler, Bristol, deputy coroner of Bucks county, was called to view the body.

The funeral service will be conducted at a funeral home, 13th and Lehigh avenues, Philadelphia, tomorrow at 10 a. m. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery. Friends may call this evening.

Following the crash, Senders arrested William Brand, Main street, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and interfering with an officer. Brand was given a hearing last evening before Justice of the Peace James Laughlin, and fined $5 and costs, after pleading guilty.

COUNTY BANKERS AND FARMERS TOUR NEW JERSEY FARMS

Visit Hennery, Dairy, and Potato Farm During Their Annual Trip

63 IN THE PARTY

Interested in Cow Hospital at Modern Dairy; Watch Rotolactor Operate

The annual farm tour of the Bucks County Bankers' Association, yesterday, covering approximately 50 miles, was participated in by 63 bankers and farmers, and three stops were made.

Leaving the home of Edward H. Lovett, River Road, Yardley, shortly after ten o'clock yesterday morning, the route led directly to Mercerville, N. J., via Trenton. Stopping at the "indoor" poultry farms of M. H. Arndt, Mercerville, N. J., the group saw 16,000 chickens being raised in batteries of wire cages. Six thousand of the chickens were said to be layers. Before viewing the chickens, the visiting group met on the lawn beneath the spreading shade trees. Here William F. Greenwalt, Bucks County farm agent, who arranged the tour, presented Mr. Arndt, and A. C. McLean, farm agent of Mercer County, N. J.

The 16,000 chickens on the Arndt place are quartered in a group of buildings noted for their cleanliness, and adaptability to the purpose for which they are used. The chicken's life is divided into four cycles: four weeks' starting period, eight weeks growing, and eight weeks developing, then the laying period. "We have here our third generation of chickens raised in complete confinement," stated Mr. Arndt. "As soon as the chick leaves the shell it is confined in a house under red light to kill all traces of cannibalism. At the end of the laying life the hens are killed and sold for food consumption, but if a hen has proven to be above the standard set, then it is used for breeding purposes."

It is claimed that eggs from chickens raised according to the New Era System are heavier and richer in vitamins. The eggs as they are laid roll to the edge of the cage, and are gathered. This prevents other hens from setting on them as they are laying, and the heat from their bodies killing the value of the egg previously laid. Not a single bird was lost at the Arndt place during the extremely hot weather, while owners of henneries using the floor system suffered heavy losses and it is said that the feeding runs 10 pounds less.

The second stop of the tour was made at the potato farm of Charles Probasco, Hightstown, N. J., where 400 acres of potatoes were in process of being dug. The crop was being harvested, bagged and shipped, at the rate of 1800 one hundred pound sacks daily. Eleven hundred and fifty sacks had already left the farm when the visitors arrived. The product is marketed under the trade name of "The Famous Mickey Potatoes." They are all cobbler. They are dug, picked and bagged by negroes who live and board on the place, having their own commissary out in the open, living quarters in the barn. A barber shop was in full operation in one of the out-buildings on the place. Mr. Probasco said he was selling his crop at $1.90 per hundred pounds. They were sorted by machinery, and bagged by hand, loaded onto trucks and hauled to New York. He said that he had sprayed his vines six times, and he uses all motorized equipment. He is considered to have the best organized personnel in that potato raising district. Mr. Probasco told the visitors that the crop was not up to standard this year, and that the rains had done it more damage this year than the drought, it having suffered from four distinct floods

TOO MANY NURSES

The overcrowded condition of the field of medical nursing is emphasized in a report issued by a national committee on the grading of nursing schools.

The findings represent the result of eight years of study. The situation uncovered, the committee points out, is not an outgrowth of the depression although it has been aggravated by this. Under-education and over-production are responsible for it, says the committee, and this condition was evident before the depression.

Figures are given in support of this statement. Since 1900, it is declared, the population of the country has increased only 62 per cent, while the number of trained nurses graduated has risen 2,374 per cent.

The obvious remedy is to bring about a reduction in the number of graduating nurses. This would be accomplished by reducing the number of nursing schools. The committee found the general level of present schools to be low. It divided them into a few very good ones, a few very poor ones and a good many mediocre ones. The committee recommended closing of "most of the mediocre and all of the poor schools."

"Hospitals are not schools," it said, "and working as apprentice in a hospital, despite the many advantages it offers, is not the same as studying in a school."

Good nursing frequently is as important to the welfare of the patient as good medical attention. Whatever steps may be taken to improve present conditions in the profession, care should be exercised that there be no lowering of standards and that the cost of nursing be kept within reasonable limits.

WINGS

Man has ever been able to go anywhere and do anything on wings of imagination. Today his wings are those of an airplane.

These new wings are bringing within the reach of man for the first time the remotest regions of the world and vast wealth which has been beyond his reach. Aviation is tapping valuable mineral deposits heretofore undiscoverable but inaccessible. In the Rockies, among the mountain peaks of South and Central America. In the mountain recesses of Europe, prospectors have discovered mother lode but have been unable to bring out much of this hidden wealth because of insurmountable obstacles which made the ordinary methods of transportation useless.

When a single airplane can transport 400 tons of mining machinery into a region surrounded by towering 15,000-foot peaks it can no longer be said that mineral wealth anywhere is beyond the reach of the mining engineer. The airplane is destined to supplant the pack-mule the llama, and the mountain switch-back railroad. It will carry the machinery and man-power into the hills and fly back with precious metal.

Where are the wisecracks who a score of years ago ridiculed the idea of transportation by air? They are probably still carrying a candle to bed.

Broadway plays slated for early production will emphasize rustic sentiment. Little did Farley dream that the "typical prairie" crack would be dramatized.

Italy's New Envoy

Financial items as Mussolini forged the internal economy of Fascist Italy. From 1925 to 1932 he was a delegate to the Assembly of the League of Nations and a member of its finance committee. He was at the same time a member of the Council of corporations—one of Italy's supreme economic bodies, ruling her industrial groups—and tourist commissioner.

He was Italian delegate to the first and second Young Plan conferences at the Hague in 1926. He negotiated a commercial treaty with Roumania. He was made Italian Commissioner to regulate with Yugoslavia the fishing rights in the Adriatic. From July 1932 until a few weeks ago he was Under-secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, with Mussolini holding the Ministerial portfolio.

From trade to tourism and from figures to fish Svulich took on every job that was laid upon him and did it well.

In Rome Svulich lives with his wife and three children in a six-room flat in the residential outskirts, in an unpretentious district. Three servants are enough for the family. The Ambassador keeps up the old home in Trieste, but seldom lives there.

Skiing is his favorite sport, and he rides outdoors or on an indoor ring every day of the year.

He drinks sparingly of the national wines and diets rigidly. Stomach ulcers three years ago have made him careful.

Washington is Svulich's first big foreign assignment but if he runs true to form he will know more about the country before he leaves than most Americans.

But he will miss the opera. Twice a week, in season, work permitting, has been his record here for years.

County Bankers and Farmers Tour New Jersey Farms

when the ground was under water for quite some time.

The next and final stop was at the Walker-Gordon milk plant, where 1200 cows were being milked at the rate of four a minute. Each cow is milked three times daily. The herd is comprised of 50 per cent Holsteins, with the balance made up of Jerseys, Guernseys and brown Swiss. The cows are housed in modern, sanitary barns, 50 cows to a barn, 100 in a double barn. As the cows are released they walk leisurely through an entry-way to the milking parlor, the last cow out of each 100 group having a bell suspended around its neck. W. W. Davison escorted the visitors through the entire project, explaining it in detail.

Among the interesting things that he told was that a calf is born on the place every seven hours; a large percentage of the herd is not owned by the Walker-Gordon people, but is there under contract by private owners, each owner contracting to furnish 100 milking cows necessitating that he keep approximately 130 cows in his unit. The average life of a cow was said to be four years. The method of feeding and the manner in which the feed is prepared and stored was told to the visitors as well as the fact that the bedding now used consists of peat moss and peanut shells. Much of the feed is raised on the place, but a large quantity is also contracted for from neighboring farmers. Huge silos are used for the ensilage, the four largest being 30 feet in diameter, and 70 feet high, each containing 2500 tons. A cow hospital attracted considerable attention, and it was explained to the cows showing signs of illness.

Previous to making a tour of the Walker-Gordon place the visitors were served with a full-course turkey dinner which was served in the large dining room. The rotolator was viewed in operation, and excited much interest and many questions were asked.

WHISTLING CHAMP

BOSTON.—(INS)—Thirteen-year-old Frederick Nelson, Jamaica Plain, crowned whistling champion of Boston, can imitate anything from a peanut stand to a steamboat in a fog. Nelson, in competition, started off with the shrill blast of a policeman's whistle, followed with the call of the "cuckoo," worked up to the steamboat and train whistles and then tapered off on the high notes of a mechanical peanut vendor.

The Musings of A Native Son---

A Weekly Commentary on Things of Local Interest which will appear each Tuesday in this column.

Now that the Summer Olympic Games are in full swing, it will be nice to learn what Germany has done to provide accommodations for the visiting sportsmen and sportswomen.

The customary Olympic Village has been built. No woman is permitted to enter the "Village" which lies a distance of fourteen kilometers from the Reichssportfeld, the central arena for all the sports contests. The men in the "Village" will have to take a bus to the Reichssportfeld.

Olympic Village is wonderful, containing splendid little houses for each nation and an enormous kitchen-house where the special dishes will be prepared for more than four thousand sons of more than fifty nations. The foods and their preparation are to be kept as nearly as possible like those to which each national group is accustomed at home, so as to minimize the health problems which so frequently occur from eating strange foods. The meals will be excellent, for the North German Lloyd Steamship Company will provide and direct central kitchens and hundreds of well-trained stewards will be kept busy in the village.

Germany has also had to provide accommodations for 435 sportsmen and they will be the guests in a hotel situated right at the athletic field. This large new building has just been finished and contains about five hundred rooms. Two guests will share a bedroom and a little sitting room. Only the very hard work will be done by paid scrubbers and charwomen. All other things have been put in the hands of about one hundred German white ribboners (W. C. T. U.) directed by their president. All of them will serve without pay.

Some of the older women will serve in the kitchen, while three dozen "white ribbon girls"—home daughters, students, high school girls, business women, doctors and others—will be ready to serve in the dining rooms the meals which the older women have prepared. Each of them will always serve the same group of sportsmen, who will sit at tables marked with little national flags.

These honorary serving girls will wear very nice light blue dresses for which was chosen a wonderful new material called "vistra" which is the product of the German chemical industry. The five Olympic rings will be in evidence on these light blue dresses and also on the work dresses of the older women. Every effort will be made to give the foreign guests good home care, good food, and a spirit of friendliness, so they may feel that Germany is well meaning and strives for peace and friendship.

Groups of German students will guide the foreign guests about the city of Berlin and to the museums and castles. Germany has expended over $1,000,000 to provide entertainment for the visiting athletes.

Those who enjoy a movie that carries a human impulse, that has a pretty heroine, with a bewitching voice, and that is interspersed with catchy cowboy songs, should first read the story, "Lady Smith" published in the August number of Good Housekeeping, and then when the opportunity comes, go to the movies and see "Palm Springs" which is the movie interpretation of the story in Good Housekeeping. Frances Langford, the radio singer has the leading role.

I have heard many people say they enjoyed reading "Echoes of the Past" that appear on the second page of the Courier, every Monday evening. But I wonder how many really know anything about what they read. A councilman said to me, that Charles Duncan had sent a bill to Council fifty years ago for $1.50 for boarding and lodging a destitute stranger. I explained to him that in the older days, town council appointed a poor committee and gave it an appropriation to care for the poor and infirm. It is quite likely that the poor committee made arrangements with Charles Duncan to care for the destitute stranger and he presented the modest bill of $1.50.

Another article stated that Mr. Packer, the chairman of the street committee, reported "that he could not get the flag pole removed for $25 but that he had it examined, and it was reported perfectly sound." How many who read this article know what is meant by the flag pole, and where it stood? Fifty years ago this flag pole stood at the top of the Mill street hill at the intersection of Radcliffe street and Mill street. It was erected in 1861, was 115 feet in height and flew a flag 20x36 feet. The day the first flag was unfurled, was bright and warm, with a southerly breeze. This was followed by a sudden wind and rain storm from the west, and before the flag, which a few minutes before had been unfurled with loud cheers and hurrahs, could be hauled down, the wind tore out the top of the pole, where the halyards were fastened, and the flag was released, and carried over the Delaware House towards the river.

The last flag that was flown from the pole was preserved for many years and used upon special occasions and for decorative purposes for political gatherings. When the Bristol Fire Company No. 1, purchased their Silsby fire engine, they used to test it by attempting to throw a stream of water to the top of the pole.

I neglected to state that the first flag was made by the patriotic ladies of Bristol, and that each star bore the name of the lady who made it. The flag continued to fly nearly every day and was allowed to wear away without being repaired, so that in three years there was little left of it except the union. Towards the close of the war, when the fall of Richmond seemed certain, $100 was collected by subscription and a new flag was purchased. The flag eventually was placed in the custody of Henry Clay Beatty Post No. 73, G. A. R.

TWO WEEKS WITH PAY

VACATION TIME is here. The family car is piled high with baggage and you're off for two weeks . . . to the seashore, the mountains, the lakes . . . or maybe you'll play gipsy and wander the world with a road-map.

But no matter what you do, or where you go, you'll need to stock up before you leave. There'll be many things to buy—sunburn lotion, bathing caps, a traveling bag, a new tire. There'll be many things to plan—places to see, and places to stop.

Read the advertisements first—the travel advertisements which mention hotels and comfortable places to eat and sleep. Read the advertisements of Vacation Specials—equipment that you must have if you're going to enjoy every day away.

It's surprising what a help the advertisements are. They tell you of savings . . . they post you on the newest improvements . . . they remind you of things you might have forgotten . . . and they make your two weeks with pay, pay MORE!

"KING OF HEARTS"

BY EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

CHAPTER XXXVI

Jack rejoiced that his impulsive departure had landed him in the northern city on Sunday, when he might go directly to Mrs. Kime's and find Lynn. That is, he hoped to find her at Mrs. Kime's, if some hidden prank had not deceived him. So many times had hope lured him to the same destination, in vain, that he was still skeptical at seeing her there at all. But if Lynn were living there again, as the letter had assured him she was, it would be nice to surprise her on this lovely spring day of her leisure.

Mrs. Kime's greeting was decidedly more gracious than her first one had been. "She's come back!" were her first jubilant words.

"She's here?" his words were half interrogation and half conviction. No—she isn't here, just now, but she'll be back some time this evening. She went away for the day—with a friend of hers," she finished with an apologetic tone.

Which tone betrayed to Jack that the friend was masculine. "Oh!" he exclaimed with bitter disappointment. He hesitated, then decided, "I'll come back, later—and wait for her." He turned away slowly, reluctantly.

The spring sky was a deep vault of blue, high above, pricked with stars and dusty-silver showers of light so remote that they did not even twinkle. Lynn remembered the low ceiling of the tropics with its multitudes of flashing lights—out over the bayous in the throbbing closeness of the night and the fireflies suspended in the air like stars falling to earth in showers. This night was divine, but ah! the magic of that other. Not alone the heavens and the stars and the atmosphere were different. On that other night, Jack was driving his car through the star-filled night. To-night, it was Jed Townsend who sat beside her in the cool, thin silence of lake breezes. And their conversation had progressed rapidly from casual business to very direct personal matters.

"Well, how do you like it?" he had referred to her new work.

"I love it, Jed! It was so sweet of you to help me get started."

"Love anything else?" he suggested quickly, bending toward her.

"Why—" she laughed with confusion, wondering how to reply to him. "what—do you mean?"

"I mean that I love you—adore you!" he declared vehemently, and took her in his arms with a sudden gesture. "Lynn—darling, I hadn't planned to tell you so soon—but I can't help myself. I can't wait—to know how it is with you—" he was looking down into her white face, eagerly, searching the glowing dark circles of her eyes for her answer, watching her lips as they parted a little with her gasp of consternation.

"So soon?" she thought, with regret, and wondering how to reply. "Why—Jed—"

She could feel the slightly lax tension of his arms the faltering of his hope with her first words of doubtful bewilderment. "Don't!" he pleaded. "Don't say it—yet. I'll wait. I can see you are all mixed up and groping around for a balance, yet. I don't blame you. Poor darling, yet I've had a bad time of it. But that's all over now," he assured her. His arms were less urgent, but still held her with a protective tenderness. "Some day, when you get more adjusted, I'll ask you again. Meanwhile, you get your thoughts started along that trail and see if you don't discover something that may surprise you a little," his low voice spoke whimsically, close to her face; and she thought how chivalrous and gentle he was even without a romantic southern heritage.

He was precious, even if she did not love him—and never could. With his ardent earnestness, it was a bit difficult to remember Jack and the reason why she never could love anyone else. But they were there in the background—Jack and the reason. For that brief revelation of life and the purpose of it all, must she sacrifice everything else? Jed had promised her he would wait until she had discovered her love for him. But how could she possibly do that, when her heart had been left far away with another? She sighed, with regret and bewilderment. "Thank you, Jed, for being so sweet."

"That's something!" he rejoiced. "Maybe I can be more than that."

"You are—very much more. I can't begin to thank you—ever."

"Don't do it now. You see, I know your thoughts of me are all mixed up with gratitude that I don't deserve. Let's skip it, shall we? From now on, you just forget I have done anything for you—if I have—and

VINCE DELIA EARNS THREE-ROUND DECISION OVER BENNY LAMONICA

By T. M. Juno

Vince Delia, St. Ann's southpaw, reached the pinnacle of his amateur boxing career last night when his body blows earned him a three round decision over Benny Lamonica, Arena, in one of the greatest fight cards ever witnessed in this locality. The show was sponsored by the St. Ann's Athletic Association with the sanction of the Middle Atlantic district of the A. A. U.

Delia was not the only Bristol fighter who fought his best fight of the season for Tally Sciarra and Willie Leighton were right behind him. Tally fought Johnny Litto, unattached, and classed as the fastest 126-pounder in Philadelphia. Two years ago Litto held the A. A. U. title. Sciarra was beaten but it was mostly the foul tactics of Litto which carried him to victory. Litto was booed for fifteen minutes before announcer Patsey Moffo could quiet the crowd to read out the winner. Leighton kayoed his opponent in the second round of a wonderful fight.

Lamonica, before the fight, was classed as an easy victor over Delia because of his recent showings in the vicinity of Philadelphia. But from the start, Delia began to sink his left into the Philadelphia boy's bread-basket. Lamonica had a powerful right which he used effectively but Delia would not wince and gave back more than he was taking. It appeared throughout the three-rounds of milling that Delia was willing to take one in the face to give his left to the stomach. In the final round, Lamonica was disgusted and was very groggy. He had given his best but could not budge the Bristolian.

The first round was fast with plenty of slugging. Lamonica carried the session by countering Delia to the face. Delia opened the canto by tapping Lamonica in the abdomen three times and taking a hard right in return. Benny shifted his attack and stung the Bristol youth with a left hook. They mixed it up within the center of the squared circle with both boys putting every ounce of their weight behind each blow. Before the gong sounded, the Arena mittman landed two rights to the face.

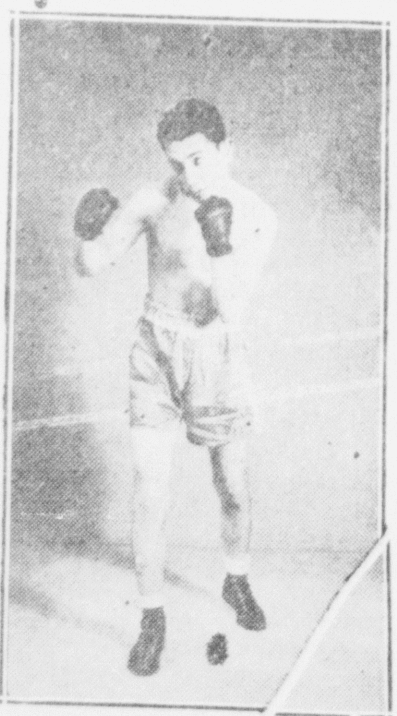

Between the rounds, Trainer Sammy Moffo instructed Delia to do nothing but punch to the body. From the start this was evident. Lamonica came out of his corner and after a little sparring, Delia landed twice with looping hooks to the body. Lamonica felt the stinging blows and changed the expression on his face. He tried his right but was stopped when Delia again shot a straight left to the body. Lamonica attempted to change his style of fighting to protect his body as he appeared to be bending over with every blow that Delia landed. In the center of the ring, both boys tried hay-makers and missed with both dropping to the floor.

Delia was up and chased Lamonica about the ring to shoot his left into his opponent's body.

Lamonica started the third round by finding his right to Delia's jaw, his hardest blow of the face. Lamonica attempted to rush the local boy to the ropes but a hook stopped him in his tracks. Another hook and still another going into the Arena boy's stomach had him groggy. He began to hang on to Delia with the localite trying to get in the finishing blow. However, his holding on enabled him to recuperate and even though the Purple and Gold fighter got in several more lefts, he was standing up at the bell.

If Johnny Litto had any prestige with the local fans, he certainly lost it with Tally Sciarra, local fighter, by his foul tactics. Litto's fouls were very obvious. He twice pushed the St. Ann's fighter to the mat. In the second when the fighters left their corners, Tally who southpawed his way to the greatest triumph of his amateur boxing career when he trimmed Benny Lamonica, leading aspirant to the 126-lb. A. A. U. diadem last night in the St. Ann's outdoor arena.

put out his hands in the form of a shake but Litto swung and weakened him with a right to the jaw. During the second round and also the final round, Litto was booed and hissed continually by the fans. Even when Patsey Moffo tried to announce the decision the spectators yelled and gave catcalls. Litto was declared the winner.

The first round of the bout went to the former A. A. U. champion by the use of his left jab. First he would use his left to shoot for the head and then suddenly switch his attack to the local boy's body. He staggered Tally with a right cross towards the finish of the session but the Purple and Gold trunked glover retaliated with a sweeping right.

Tally overcame the lead of Litto by his showing in the second round. After Litto had caught him unprepared and landed a solid right to the jaw, the Bristolian began to counterpunch and feed lefts and rights to his foe's body. Several times, Litto began to back up from the resident boy's blows and twice rights from the gloved fists of Sciarra had him shaking his head. Before the close of the session, Litto hooked Tally in the body with a right. During the round, Litto did plenty of pushing and twice was warned by the referee.

After a minute of mixing it up in the third, Litto shoved Tally to the mat. After being helped to his feet, Tally was met with a series of rights and lefts but he stood toe to toe and gave it right back to Litto. A right to the face was Tally's best punch of the frame as the gong sounded.

The Rescue Squad fighter, Willie Leighton, made certain of his sixth straight triumph. His opponent was Frank Franco, Mason, and the second round saw Franco out on his feet with Referee Ed McGinn stopping the fight to stop the Mason warrior from absorbing more punishment. Franco was no ham for the localite for at the start of the first round, he staggered Leighton and had him very wobbly on his feet with a hard right to the jaw followed by a hook to the body. Leighton, however, began some wild swinging and a right found its mark. Franco went down and at the count of nine got up. The bell sounded to save him.

It was only a matter of time for the knockout blow even though the Mason fighter tried to be game and exchanged blows with Leighton at the start of the second. After forty seconds, Franco's eyes were glassy and McGinn did the right thing in stopping the battle.

Angelo (Mocer), local novice, had to come back strong to beat John Archie, of the East Side Club. Archie floored Mocer for the count of nine in the first session and put the localite on the receiving end throughout the round. However, it was a changed story in the following canto, for the tables were turned and a short right upper cut put Archie on the canvas to even matters. Mocer's aggressiveness won, the next round and with it the decision. It was Mocer's third victory in four bouts.

The best 112-pounder to make a showing here was on exhibit last night as the boxing patrons saw Johnny Forte, brother of Tommy Forte, former A. A. U. champion, score a one round knockout over Leo Neary, Kensington. Forte appeared very roughed for a 112-pounder and looks like a coming champ.

Neary began as if he was going to make short work of the Mason fighter for with a hard clean right hand punch he floored Forte at the start but this was only the signal for the Mason fighter to get started for he landed a right to the heart that took the stamina out of Neary. Less than a moment later a left hook in the pit of the stomach flattened out Neary for the count of ten.

U. S. Jumpers in Clean Sweep

This excellent photograph shows (left to right) Delor Thurber, University of Southern California; Cornelius Johnson of Compton, Cal., and Dave Albritton of Ohio State University as they received Olympic honors in Berlin after scoring a clean sweep in the high-jump. Johnson set a new Olympic record of 6 feet 7 3/4 inches. Albritton was second, Thurber third.

It was a bad night for game Bobby Schofield, East Side Club. Schofield fought twice and in each bout took a severe lacing. His first fight was with Eugene Murray, Arena. Murray, six feet, six inches tall, and weighing 227 pounds, had little trouble in hitting Schofield and did very little missing. In the second after taking a beating about the head, Schofield took a count of nine and then came back to wallopp the huge Murray. Schofield had no show in the last round.

Nathaniel Hines was the colored youth who used Schofield for a punching bag in his second fight of the night. This was the final bout of the card and was very uninteresting, it being one-sided from the start.

Ray Salmon, Arena, would not make a go in his meeting with the colored Calvin Robinson with the result that Referee McGinn intervened and stopped the fight, giving it to Robinson and declaring that Salmon failed to give his best.

The crack of that left hook that Tommy Higgins landed on William Blade, Kensington, could be heard about the ringside. Blade took the full count from that one punch and was several minutes coming to. The Arena fighter shot the finishing blow after two minutes and fifty seconds of the first round.

In the tenth bout, Bobby Hinchcliffe, Kensington, all but put Calvin Jenkins, East Side, out in the second round and it was this session that gave him the nod over the colored youth.

Hinchcliffe did very little fighting during the first session, being on the defense all the time with Jenkins doing the leading and making a fight of it. In the second, Hinchcliffe began to work his left and his body blows began to show effect on Jenkins. Towards the finish of the round, two fast ones in succession, had Jenkins folded up on the mat and at the count of eight, the bell rang.

Jenkins stood on the defense in the final round with Hinchcliffe doing the leading and trying to land his left solidly against the colored boy's body but Jenkins kept away from him and managed to stay the limit. Hinchcliffe was awarded the fight, principally on his knock-down.

It proved to be a bad night for the East Side Boxing Club, holders of the Philadelphia Club championship for two consecutive years. Tanahill's boys won but one bout in five. Sammy Moffo's St. Ann's Club, won three and lost one. Mason, won one and lost two. Kensington, took one out of three while the Arena tied St. Ann's with three and one.

Officials of the bouts were: Referee, Ed McGinn; judges, Nathan Lipschultz and William Montgomery; timer, Tommy O'Hanlon; physician, Joseph Levy; clerk, Frank Palermo; deputy inspector, Joseph Brown; and announcer, Patsey Moffo. It was announced that the next show would be held in two weeks.

HIBERNIANS RETAIN HOLD ON FIRST PLACE

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Schedule for tonight—ST. ANN'S and THIRD WARD (Landreth field)

The Hibernians retained their hold on first place in the Bristol Twilight League loop by trouncing the White Elephants, 11-3, in a five-inning match played on the Bath Road diamond. The winners were credited with four hits.

"Spike" Tryon was on the hill for the Elephants at the start but was the victim of a large bombardment of base blows and retired after the Hibs had pushed over seven tallies on eight hits and a hit batsman. In this canto, "Punkie" Zeffries slammed a home run with a runner on base and Joe Roe tripled with two pals on the sacks.

Reo' Cummons relieved Tryon and he worked well until the fourth when an error and three hits plus a double by Eddie Sullivan accounted for a quartet of runs.

Three passes and a hit by Cummons gave the Elephants their only tally in the last half of the fifth.

Spanish Civil War May Take Decisive Turn Soon

By H. R. Knickerbocker

Northern Spanish Rebel Army Headquarters, Burgos, Aug. 4—(INS)—White army forces battling their way towards red Madrid were cheered today by a sensational but futile attempt by Don Juan, the Prince of the Asturias and future King of Spain if the monarchy is restored, to join them in the thick of the fight.

For 24 hours the young Prince was actually at the front. He penetrated as far as Aranda, only a few miles behind Somo Sierra, which the rebels won from the reds just a few days ago, before he was turned back by the military authorities.

Don Juan has now returned to Cannes, France, where his wife and newborn daughter await him.

One of the chief bits of good news, state rebels from the northern front, who came today with word that General Francisco Franco, commander, has received from abroad 18 large commercial airplanes, suitable for troop transport.

This news required more rejoicing among the whites, than any of the battles won so far, and it is now evident that General Franco will be able to fly troops from Morocco to begin the long advance from all sides, upon the capital.

Loyalty of the navy to Madrid has so far prevented Franco from moving, although he is said to be able to fly as many as 600 men, chiefly members of the Spanish Foreign Legion, to the Spanish peninsula with a few airplanes at his disposal.

Where General Franco got his planes is not announced, but the recent attempt of Italian airplane pilots to reach Spanish Morocco has resulted in much talk.

THE CONSTITUTION

finally the Constitution was invoked, they were already dead. The Supreme Court did not kill them—it only pronounced a coroner's verdict on the corpse.

Our history is strewn with warnings that what is contrary to the Constitution is also very likely to be contrary to progress. Why is this? We often speak of legislation as being constitutional or unconstitutional;—but what constitutes the constitutionality of the Constitution? Before what supreme bar must it be justified? The secret of the Constitution's innate rightness is in its profound harmony with natural law, with moral principle, with the public conscience, and with the political wisdom won through the age-long travail of our people. These are its bases. Hence, nothing is constitutional or unconstitutional merely because of certain words written on a parchment, but because of its agreement or non-agreement with natural law and the moral government of life, which that parchment has somehow magnificently understood. This is the secret of the Constitution's innate authority. That is why our fathers could build a highway that bears our weight as we advance, and that is why many new experiments lead us so consistently into bogs.

We talk about defending the Constitution!—but neither those who use it as a class or party weapon, nor those who would disrupt it because it thwarts their will, can have any part in this. If it ever comes that the Constitution needs defense, the plain people, all of whose interests are bound up in it, will attend to that. There it stands!—simply by being there it defends and warns. Defend the Constitution?—it is defending us from fallacies that the experience of 3,000 years condemns; from dictatorship which is abhorrent to every American concept; from the totalitarian state that regiments men's bodies and denatures their minds and forces their consciences—from these and like evils now so widespread on the earth, this Constitution is daily defending us. It stands between us and the great blasphemy that man is a creature of the State. Here is our throne, here is our crown, here is the sceptre of our people—the Constitution.
